MASTER LOCK EASES TAX SEASON STRESS WITH SWEEPSTAKES AND TIPS FOR AN ORGANIZED FILING

Tax Relief Reward Sweepstakes offers Master Lock Vault® users chance to win $1,000

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (March 17, 2014) – For many Canadians, organizing and making sense of tax forms is sometimes an even bigger battle than the actual process of filing taxes. Today Master Lock is providing consumers with advice to make filing less taxing this year. As an added bonus, consumers across the U.S. and Canada are invited to register for a Master Lock Vault account – a safe and secure online storage and organization system – and submit an entry for a chance to win one of five, $1,000 prizes in the Master Lock “Tax Relief Rewards” Sweepstakes.

“Even if your personal tax situation is not complicated, there are still several documents taxpayers need to keep track of for what the CRA demands,” said Rebecca Smith, vice president, marketing for Master Lock. “Getting organized can help remove the stress involved with meeting the April 30 deadline, and by using the Master Lock Vault, preparing to file your taxes properly will be a breeze.”

Follow these five tips to help you get organized to file your taxes this season*:

- 1. Get your wages in order. When the new year rolls around, begin thinking about your past year’s employment. Whether you’re self-employed, an independent contractor or an employee, there are certain forms you need to submit to properly file your income.

Employers are required to provide all employees a Form T4 showing how much was earned, how much was taxable and what taxes were withheld from your wages. If you have more than one job, a T4 is required from each employer. However, if you’re self-employed a Form T2125 is required among other paperwork. Before filing, make sure all receipts and documentation for business-related expenses are in order – mileage records, office equipment and supplies, utility bills, etc.

- 2. Go digital. Avoid the mess of a mound of paperwork from income wages, to auto and home loans, gifts to charity and more by storing – and organizing – all of your tax-related documents digitally. Scan documents and upload as you go through your paperwork, then shred and recycle the hard copies. Even if you opt to keep hard copies, a digital back-up is an important safeguard should your paper documents ever be lost, misplaced, stolen or damaged.

By utilizing a free, secure service such as the Master Lock Vault (www.masterlockvault.com) you’ll have easy access to all of your files wherever you are. Not only can you upload PDF forms, but you can upload photos from your phone of important receipts and expenses for your records. All data is instantly synchronized between the website and the App. Bonus: securely store log-in information for your bank accounts and tax filing site in the Master Lock Vault so you’ll never have to worry about forgetting your username or password.

- 3. Devise a filing system. Whether you've upgraded to a digital storage solution or are preparing your hard copies for the switch, it's important to decide how to group your paperwork and documents together – digitally or physically.

It's helpful to group all income statements, documents and necessary forms together as well as paid invoices or other evidence of income. Next, all your deductions should be stored in one place – mortgage interest payments, property taxes, charitable gifts and medical bills. Finally, keep track of and file or scan all receipts in one place and organize your receipts by type, for example: bills, travel, utilities, insurance, fuel costs, etc. Most importantly, once you devise a filing system, remember to do the easiest thing – use it!

- 4. Decide how to file. If you choose to do your own taxes, deciding on a software service can be difficult, and for married or recently married couples, deciding to file jointly or separately can be a hard decision. However, one of the more important decisions is whether or not to electronically file.

With Canadian electronic filing through NETFILE or EFILE becoming more popular, more secure, providing faster returns and generally more convenient than paper, the biggest benefit to electronic filing is that you will receive a confirmation receipt within seconds. The confirmation can give many taxpayers a sigh of relief knowing that the CRA has received it, accepted it and is beginning to process your paperwork. What's better is that if you're eligible, you'll receive a direct deposit tax return in as little as eight business days compared to four to six weeks for a paper return.

For more information on how to electronically file, visit, <http://www.netfile.gc.ca/>.

- 5. Prepare for next year. Once you've nailed down a filing system, remember to think taxes year-round. It's much easier to pick up already-filed papers or digital folder than go through billing statements, piles of papers and online accounts to gather your documents for next year.

It's also important to keep up with changes in tax laws for the new tax year to ensure your documents are in line. If you use a tax preparer, now might be the time to discuss where you could net out next year. Changes in marital status or dependents may impact what you could expect to pay or receive as a refund next year, and if you're self-employed or handle accounting for a business, now might be the time to make a major purchase or sell equipment.
